

Suzanne 'Suzy' Jones (Biography)

Suzanna Jones was married to a drunkard by the name of Sam Givens and had two children, Timmy Jones and Jimmy Johnson. On Aug 5 1964 in Tampa Florida, Suzy gave birth to Timothy, a pet name given by the mother at the time when she was only seventeen. The mother with her child had to be put under medical observation for two extra weeks, so that Timmy could develop entirely as he had some health complications upon his birth.

At first, Timmy was placed at an elementary school by the name of AVC, where he was doing just fine, but the teacher did mention something about his mischievous behavior at times; always getting out of the seat and jumping around, which caused a lot of disturbance in class. After being kicked out of AVC Elementary, Timmy was now studying at 123 elementary. Though he performed well for a while but eventually got himself into trouble again. On the other hand, Timmy's elder brother Jimmy was taken away to a foster home, while he was young and now no more lives with his mother.

Struggling to keep food on the table, Suzy had to work two separate jobs and was unable to come home early. It was hard on the boys too, when there was nobody to wake them up and get them dressed for school. They had been doing this on their own since the age of five, as Suzy could not get up with the children and stand by the door for them. She practically never helped them out with any of the school work.

The boys and their mother had to suffer throughout their lives because Sam was always found drunk, gambling and even used to run around like a vicious animal. Apparently, Sam was never a part of their lives as he had very little interaction with the children, which made them really stubborn and most of the time upset. Eventually their father started to misbehave and gave the boys a hard time.